

The Future is Bright

The future's bright they say (they wish)
Tech like we've never seen
We've solved corruption, politics
Our cars drive us, our waste is clean

We've got cheap healthcare, devices galore
Things of the past include cancer
Aging is reserved for the poor
And we manage to avoid real answers

Since no one wants to ask the right questions
Let me do the honors
What about the rising seas — not to mention
The cities underwater?

What about the underemployed?
The homeless, and unsure?
What about the ozone we destroyed?
And all the resource wars?